Its aim is to help out children who otherwise might be involved in drug or alcohol abuse or would be left out of the game because of their small stature. Now, Inai is still in its infancy, but they are growing and have good results to show for themselves. Japanese Inai Rugby players are still working hard to get a foot on the football/rugby world stage. And one of the players who have been working hard, to improve his game is Kiyotaka Yasuda. During the World Cup qualifying games he demonstrated what can be done by a small player. He is now 7 foot. This is one of the main reasons Inai is still growing – the ability of players like Kiyotaka to work hard. Not only does he work hard on the pitch, Kiyotaka does all the activities required to get ready for playing. He has his meals and drinks prepared by the boys at the centre. He takes care of his physical condition. And when he comes off the field, he spends his spare time either teaching or working on himself mentally. Being in the National team takes a lot of work. They travel and work in Australia and South America. With the money from getting a chance at the World Cup they spent it on equipment and training. Kiyotaka was able to get his own football boots, but the best equipment was out of the reach of the team. He also spent his money on socks and a jacket. These are basic items that should be the responsibility of the team. We were lucky to meet Kiyotaka and his father who have started an account at 'Give As You Are' at the Bitcoin address 1FhQp8k6uE8Swk2Wx6TXoNcEwdeJ4Y9w4 Donations can be made directly through the above link or through Paxful. #region License // Copyright 77a5ca646e
