For example, employers can require workers to allow entry to their workspace. If an employee is refused access to their work space, they have the right to refuse to work overtime hours. Sometimes employers will allow certain individuals entry to an office or workplace. Typically, a supervisor or the employer will grant access to supervisors and important clients, but refuse to allow access to other individuals. Workers cannot refuse access to their office or workspace to clients, supervisors or other important individuals. 8. Is it legal for an employer to require their employees to
